A Wise Owl

Pictured is Doug Sanger with Barny (the Barn Owl) and Long Ears. This is woodcarving at its best ... Barny needs a bit of TLC to shape up as his 'brother or sister' Long Ears, can't distinguish it's gender; who can?

Is this First World Bee Accommodation?

Kevin Jeffress has been working with a potential Shed client to design and prototype the Singaporean version of the "Eastern Suburbs" Insulated Native Bee Hive. This is a trial which may result in millions (currency unknown) to the Shed. A fine example of Kevin's vast and exemplary fine woodworking skills. Great job K2.

Keeping the Shed Going

Geoff Greenwell also known as the "Great Maintainer" not to be confused with the Great Entertainer which he may well be in his spare time. Geoff maintains, adjusts, enhances and repairs, without much public complaining, the Shed machinery. Please give this some thought when next operating any piece of equipment ... be kind and careful and report any machine that is faulty. If it is not reported, it doesn't get fixed!

Scrolling Equipment Ready For Use

Last year, the Shed purchased a full set of bending and scrolling tools. On flat and round bars, these tools can bend, scroll, twist, shear, punch and rivet.

The picture shows John creating a Cookbook and kitchen towel holder. These tools reside in the Metalwork room. Please speak to Mike or John, who can point you towards the tools and the manuals with instructions and hundreds of design ideas

The Strandbeest

The Strandbeest Theo Jansen is a Dutch artist. In 1990, he began what he is known for today: building large mechanisms out of PVC that are able to move on their own, known only as Strandbeest. Wikipedia Check it out. Proud to be Dutch ... ha, ha.
